

COHESION AWARD WINNERS - OCTOBER 2024

Charlie Carlisle - 1st Prize He is a model student who is a fine role model to others both in class and on Campus.

James Edmondson – 2nd Prize He always follows tutor instructions and continually strives to do the best he can in class and improve himself each week – polite and respectful to others and helps peers out if they are struggling in class.

Ace Mohammed – 3rd Prize He has been working really hard this year and has shown a big improvement from last year.

Elise McQuade – Showing care and consideration to another learner when they needed help and support.

Ariana Smythe - She has attended 100% of her lessons during the first half term and is always on campus at least 45 minutes before the start of lessons. She was unable to access her preferred subject choice but has happily joined painting and decorating group where she is demonstrating good practical skills and has coped well with the change in environment. She communicates openly and honestly and was voted as a learner voice rep for her group- something that was outside her comfort zone but she agreed to do it.

Mostafa Akbari - He always attends his sessions with a positive attitude and a willingness to help other students. He will offer advice and support if a student is struggling, and shows compassion when required. He is the epitome of a team player!

Jacob Newby Wilson – He assisted with Campus Cohesion and reported a Health and Safety issue for the benefit of others.

Harry Ackrord – He has shown a massive improvement in attitude, attendance and maturity from last year. He is excelling in his course. He always listens and engages well in tutorials and is the only learner to make sure the room is clean and tidy before he leaves. His tutor is very proud of him.

Courtney Styles - She had a lovely, friendly manner and really embraced another learner who wanted to compliment her on her style.

Tyler Coulton- He has been very helpful with helping staff members to organise rooms and posters for the College open day.

Finley Hurst - He is the only young man in the class, however, whilst quiet he interacts well with his peers.

Kaleb Hooper – He attended his first functional skills class and worked extremely hard throughout. He has a mature attitude to learning and leaves the class in good spirits.

Trystan Cummings – willingly assisting at Open Day.

Jack Barret - willingly assisting at Open Day.

Natalie Spencer- willingly assisting at Open Day.

Aimee Walton - Willingly assisting at Open Day.

Alice Mcrone- Willingly assisting at Open Day.

Shae Wolstenholme – Encouraging his peers to do the right thing and assisting Campus Cohesion.
